

LAUSHA VECILS AS WAR WINNERS

Maligned Second Lieutenants Always on Job, Says Philadelphia Colonel

MORE OFFICERS RETURN Lieutenant Adam Long Gimbel Among Those Winning Distinction

American second lieutenants, most of whom were inducted into the army as privates and won rank over stiffest kind of competition, did more than any other single grade to win the war.

This opinion was expressed by Lieutenant Colonel Edward J. G. Beardsley, 258 South Sixteenth street, who went to Camp Dix in company with other officers and enlisted men who arrived in New York yesterday aboard the Turin.

The "shave-it," maligned by soldier and civilian alike, proved equal and willing to the multitudinous tasks assigned him in the American army, and always gave the Germans more than they sent according to Beardsley.

Those who stayed at home may well feel proud in the work of friends or relatives who achieved the rank of second lieutenant and operated in that grade in France.

REVISED WAR LIST BOOSTS CITY DEAD

Six of Seventeen Philadelphians on Short Report Made Supreme Sacrifice

31,701 LOST IN ACTION

Today's casualty list is one of the smallest recorded.

In the combined sections, including a list that was issued yesterday, there are only 264 names for the country, 250 of which of this number are from Pennsylvania.

However, Philadelphia's army death list for the day runs high. Out of a total of 31,701 names, six city men are reported dead.

In three cases corrections to previous reports bring sorrow, while in one instance a Philadelphia family is made happy by the latest report.

Private Elmer W. Fickessen, 1319 North Twenty-seventh street, and Harry Manuvel, 415 Watkins street, both of whom were previously reported missing in action, are listed today to have been killed in fighting on the western front.

Private Elmer W. Fickessen, 1319 North Twenty-seventh street, reported dead of disease, is listed by his parents as being alive, although his death was officially reported and confirmed by the Red Cross.

According to an official telegram to the mother, Mrs. Wilhelmina Fickessen, the soldier died of influenza, in France, October 28. He was a member of Company C, 31st Infantry, and had been overseas since July. He was twenty-three years old and had trained at Camp Meade a few weeks before sailing.

Private Nick Janacone and Robert J. Garner, this city's latest fatalities, were killed in action in the Argonne sector. Mr. Garner was reported to have died of accident or disease.

Thomas W. Kelly, 253 Durfor street, reported killed in action in the Argonne sector, was a member of the 12th Regiment, Marine Corps, and was reported to have died of accident or disease.

General March has announced that 25 per cent of men who were wounded have recovered and returned to duty. There were 31,701 killed in action and 281 in one manner or another perished at sea during the war.

Seven men from this city are classified today's casualty list as wounded.

Sergeant Corwin B. Taylor, reported on February 21, had been wounded, according to corrections, killed in action July 19. Taylor was a member of the 12th Regiment, Marine Corps, and was reported to have died of accident or disease.

Private John J. Barton received a bullet in the right leg before he could get to cover in an engagement in the Argonne sector. According to recent letters home, Barton is convalescing in a Paris hospital. He is a member of the 12th Regiment, Marine Corps, and was reported to have died of accident or disease.

Private Joseph Seltzer, 2647 South Tenth street, originally reported wounded in action, is now reported to have been killed in action October 1. Every letter written to him in the last two months has been returned, marked "wounded in hospital." His parents do not know what to believe.

Sergeant Joseph Seltzer, 2647 South Tenth street, originally reported wounded in action, is now reported to have been killed in action October 1. Every letter written to him in the last two months has been returned, marked "wounded in hospital." His parents do not know what to believe.

Private Joseph Seltzer, 2647 South Tenth street, originally reported wounded in action, is now reported to have been killed in action October 1. Every letter written to him in the last two months has been returned, marked "wounded in hospital." His parents do not know what to believe.

FEAST FOR THE 27TH

Pound and Half of Chicken Allotted Each Man of Division

New York, March 3.—New York's official dinner of welcome to the returning Twenty-seventh Division will be served in the city's most luxurious hotels with all the panoply of "convict" which the soldiers have so long been denied.

The banquet made it plain that they did not intend to limit their efforts to mere "trappings," but arranged a standard menu to be served in all hotels, with a piece of resistance of one and one-half pounds of chicken for each soldier.

The parade, it was decided, will move from the starting point at Washington square at 10 a. m.

Judge Monaghan Continues Stern Sentences for Lawbreakers

From the first sentence imposed by Judge Monaghan, who presided today in the Quarter Sessions Court today, it would seem that Judge Monaghan, too, is determined to inflict prompt and severe punishment on criminals.

The first case before Judge Monaghan was that of Joseph J. Henry, 121 DuPont street, who admitted entering the store of G. J. McCann, 211 Foxborough avenue, this morning, and stealing $100 worth of goods.
